National recognition for Finlaysons' Resources & Energy team

Finlaysons have once again been recognised as having one of the leading resources and energy teams by Australasian Legal Business magazine.

Australasian Legal Business magazine listed Finlaysons as the leading Adelaide based firm in the area of resources and energy law. Furthermore, partners George McKenzie and Jeremy Schultz were highlighted for their expertise, with George being personally recognised as one of the 20 leading Australian resources lawyers and one of only two South Australian lawyers included in the list.

The Australasian Legal Business practice guide highlighted Finlaysons' work in regards to minerals, petroleum and native title, as well as the knowledge and high quality service of our partners. The practice guide is also largely based on client feedback, which makes this recognition all the more valuable to us.

This is fantastic acclaim for George, Jeremy and the rest of the resources and energy team.
